THE SKY WALKER FLIGHT SCHOOL Celebrity Weekend Activities

The Sky Walker Flight School Foundation, marking its thirteenth year of service in Prince George's county, MD, was established by Jay "Sky" Walker, a Howard University graduate and former NFL quarterback currently serving in the Maryland House of Delegates. He founded this organization on the belief that lessons learned through sportsmanship lead to success on and off the field. The Sky Walker Flight School, conducted under the direction of Mr. Walker is a free two-day, overnight non-contact football camp for young men ages 14-18, designed to sharpen their playing skills and further their education.

Over the years, nearly 1,000 D.C. metropolitan area youth have learned drills and one-on-one technique enhancements by accomplished NFL players such as LaVar Arrington, Cris Carter, Duane Clemons, Terrell Davis, London Fletcher, James Harris, Billy Jenkins, Warren Moon, Rex Ryan, Robert Smith, Brian Westbrook, and Doug Williams. Several community leaders, including former Maryland Congressman Albert Wynn, former Prince George's County Executive Jack Johnson, and Head Coach of the 2001 Super Bowl Champion Baltimore Ravens, Brian Billick, have also visited the camp to inspire these young men with motivational talks and activities.

To enhance their academic skills, the 150 student-athletes at the camp will also attend SAT preparation workshops and discuss how successful habits learned on the playing field can shape their accomplishments in the classroom.

The Sky Walker Flight School is able to provide these free services thanks to the selfless efforts of players, coaches, and community leaders, as well as through funds raised by activities such as the annual Sky Walker Celebrity Golf tournament.

Please join us and support our efforts in raising our youth to new heights. I look forward to seeing you in June!
